Feet to the Fire Writers' Workshops® offers a place to belong in a circle of writers. Through weekly motivation by a skilled writing instructor, you will “find your feet” and be able to share with others in an intimate, close, salon-style workshop. With guided prompts to get you writing and expert instruction on weekly thematic details, you'll have the support and structure you want from a writing group.

One-on-one coaching/mentoring helps writers grow in confidence and develop their solo writing projects. Whether it's sharpening your technique for your words at work, in school assignments, or with your creative pursuits, Feet to the Fire Writers' Workshops® will help “hold your feet to the fire” and get you going. We'll keep you moving!.

Meet Your Instructor

Lynn Penland

Lynn Penland is a lifelong educator, with teaching experience in several different states before she moved to Evansville. In Evansville, she spent more than three decades at the University of Evansville, from which she retired as Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs and Dean of the College of Education and Health Sciences. She was educated at the Ohio State University where she received a bachelor's degree in education and master's and doctorate degrees in health education. She has experience teaching writing at the University of Evansville, where she taught the freshman seminar intensive writing course.

Since retirement, Lynn has earned group fitness instructor certification through the American Council on Exercise, instructor certification for the Parkinson Wellness Recovery program, and instructor certification for Delay the Disease. She is actively involved in the Parkinson's Awareness Support Association of the Tri-State and serves on the steering committee as exercise coordinator for the group. She was one of the founding members of the Parkinson's Care Partners support group. She is a strong believer in “living well today” and sees a writers' workshop as a strong addition to the rich array of activities available to people with Parkinson's disease in the Evansville area.
